From the spiritual shadow realms of “Loretta” and “Pronouncing Maria” (where we discover a posthumous Hispanic teen’s Flamenco Rose) to the solemnity of “A Simple Heart” and the prescient, trans humanist Future poem “The Singularity: 5000 A.D.” to the haunting photo-scape epitaph of “Seeing Mussolini’s Mistress” and the profound existential angst of “Code Blue,” this collection reveals a 21st century surgeon-poet’s journey into umbral netherworlds of the human condition.

Do not miss this!

By just mercedes

A stunning collection of poetry - lyrical and lush, from a voice of knowledge and experience. I immerse myself in the world of this poet through his words, and see details I would have missed, without his eyes. Although the mood is often sombre, the love of life stands out strongly, and carries the reader safely. The compassion in poems such as Loretta, and Pronouncing Maria, really moves me.
