WALKING HOME: FROM EDEN TO EMMAUS BY MARGARET GUENTHER PDF

Margaret Guenther is one of the church's most popular authors. With a wide and enthusiastic ecumenical audience, she is much in demand for retreats, conferences, diocesan conventions, and clergy days.

In her new book, Guenther retells the "walking stories" of Scripture and unpacks the truths they reveal about spiritual life: Jesus walks everywhere with his disciples -- always arriving, departing, on the way somewhere else. Adam and Eve walked out of the garden, Lot and his daughters walked out of Sodom, Abraham and Isaac walked to Mt. Moriah, the Israelites walked for forty years to the promised land, the Prodigal Son walked home barefoot, the disciples walked to Emmaus.

The spiritual life is oftentimes about putting one foot in front of another, always on the way, never home, until crossing another new threshold. However, the point of all our walking -- whether tedious or joyous, rambling or goal-oriented -- is getting home, as this splendid author illustrates in this reflective new work.

Sauntering for the Soul

By meandering soul

Margaret is a dedicated walker, but not just through her beloved hollow or the streets of the various big cities in which she has landed throughout her life. Margaret walks with God. That sounds a little higher and mightier than it should for someone who is so down to earth, and more than she would be comfortable reading, I suspect, but it is true. The practical simplicity and intentional exercise of discovery that an unhurried walk invites is reflective of the revealed tenor of her companionship with the Holy One, and it is this simplicity of discovery to which she invites all of us within these pages.

Through well-crafted storyweaving of personal experience and Scripture, we are given time and space to step onto the path ourselves with those who have walked before us: Adam & Eve, Moses, the Israelites, Mary the mother of Jesus and Joseph her husband, Jesus himself and a number of others whose walking and stumblings are recorded for us in Scripture. We can retrace the well-traveled paths of mystery, gift, disappointment, wonder and unknowing - those familiar places of transformation that we have all experienced in various ways and times in our own lives. With a wise, good humor of self and gentle bedrock orientation of belief, Margaret's own stories, musings and lessons learned offer us companionship that is not only current with our times but congruent with the Eternal Now in the kind of walking she describes. We come to realize as we read and reflect that they are us and we are them; we are, all of us, each of us, meandering and beloved.

Typical of the integrating spirit of her other works, this book is a fresh example of The Rule of St. Benedict's sense, "nothing harsh, nothing burdensome." Though addressing spiritual hills and valleys, like the well-known spiritual companion she is, Margaret leaves out the mental gymnastics to offer instead direct, loving attention to the lived experience of the soul during such times via short, readable chapters ideal for picking up, putting down, and picking up again. Deep yet wonderfully unrarified insights may simply sneak up on you as you read and reflect yourself, inciting a growing feeling that you do not walk alone. And, I think, that just might be Margaret's mission here.

If you could use a good walk with a soul friend, here is one opportunity. To learn more from Margaret the teacher, I recommend her book, Holy Listening.

Walking

By Jenn's Mom

This book was purchased for a study group at my church. We are enjoying it very much, reading two chapters a week and discussing. Margaret Guenther writes so well, she is a pleasure to read. In this, she ties those stories and events from both the Old and New Testaments in the Christian Scripture to her own life, and today's world. She often gives us a new way to look at an old, old story. We are never quite sure what we will get when we pick a book for this group, but this one does not disappoint and will have us all out searching for other books by this author.

Walking Home: from Eden to Emmaus by Margaret Guenther

By Jacqueline Gainsford

Amazon Verified purchase:

Margaret's wisdom, learning, caring and imagination, skilfully interwoven, come right through this book. It is a delight to read as all her books. The biblical stories come so alive, and her beautiful writing points us all to the one great book we need to read and meditate upon, above all others, (the Bible), and to the person (Jesus) with whom we need to have a relationship with and to follow.
